

October Month of the Missions , Sunday 3rd Oct
Day for Life is celebrated annually by the Catholic Church in Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales. It is a day dedicated to raising awareness of the meaning and value of human life at every stage and in every condition. This year's Day for Life will be celebrated in Ireland on Sunday 3 October on the theme 'The Good Samaritan: A Model of Compassion'. In the context of the recent proposal to introduce assisted suicide, both in Ireland and the UK, this year's message invites Catholics to consider a more positive and compassionate response to the care of people who are in the final stages of life. The Catholic Church's approach to end of life care is well articulated in the recent Vatican document Samaritanus bonus on the care of persons in the critical and terminal phases of life. In that document we are reminded that Jesus gave us the image of the good Samaritan as the model for our compassion and our solidarity with those who find themselves vulnerable and who fear being abandoned in their final illness. The Good Samaritan is one who "crosses over", who "binds up wounds" and who, most important of all "stays with" the person for as long as is required. The fragility of life and the reality of death have been brought into sharp focus during the Covid-19 pandemic. In Ireland alone, more than 8,000 people have died with Covid-19. Each of these lives is precious and every life matters. With a most amazing spirit of solidarity, the energies of our society – in hospitals, test centres, vaccination clinics, schools, churches, supermarkets and in so many other places – have been directed towards protecting those who were most vulnerable to disease. We have begun to see the fruits of those efforts. While all of this was going on, the Oireachtas was being asked to discuss legislation to provide for assisted suicide. That particular piece of legislation, thank God, has been rejected by the Oireachtas Committee for Justice on the grounds that it was deeply flawed. The surprising and disappointing thing is that the Oireachtas Committee did not reject the principle of Assisted Suicide and has proposed that Assisted Suicide be discussed further by a special committee, which would report within a specified timeframe. Compassion is often presented as a justification for assisted suicide, but having compassion means "suffering with" someone. Assisted suicide reflects a failure of compassion on the part of society. It is a failure to respond to the challenge of caring for people who are terminally ill, or who have disabilities or dementia, as they approach the end of their lives. Those who assist with a suicide, whatever their motives, co-operate with the self-destruction of another person. It is one thing when life is allowed to take its natural course, with appropriate management of pain and stress, but is not artificially prolonged by burdensome treatment. It is something else entirely, when one person actively and deliberately participates in ending the life of another. One feature of the legalisation of Assisted Suicide in other jurisdictions is that, once it becomes lawful, it is then presented and perceived as something good to do. Instead of being surrounded by love and care, people who are already vulnerable and dependent on others due to their illness, are made to feel that assisted suicide would be "the decent thing to do". Assisted suicide presumes that there will be somebody with the required skills who is prepared to "assist" in bringing about the death of another person. Wherever assisted suicide is legalised, healthcare professionals are assumed to be the "suitably qualified persons" because they are already licensed to use drugs. It is important to be clear that healthcare professionals are given privileged access to the human body and to drugs for the express purpose of healing and alleviating pain. Any suggestion that they should be expected to assist and, under certain circumstances, actually perform the act that ends the life of another person, is seriously damaging to the ethos and the credibility of the healthcare professions. Jesus gave us the image of the good Samaritan as the model for our compassion and our solidarity with those who find themselves vulnerable and who fear being abandoned in their final illness. The Good Samaritan is one who "crosses over", who "binds up wounds" and who, most important of all "stays with" the person for as long as is required. There is much that we can do to foster a culture of life. We can begin by overcoming our fear of talking honestly about death and dying. Dying is as natural and universal as living and breathing yet our society can make it difficult for people to talk about it. As Christians, of course, our faith in the Resurrection of Jesus will stand to us. For some, if not for all, the support of prayer, and the opportunity to share faith can be of great help. The Hospice Care Movement fosters a culture of living well until the end. By doing normal

| Remembered In Mass |       |  |
|--------------------|-------|--|
| Donoughmore        |       |  |
| Sat 2nd Oct        | 7 pm  | Michael & Josephine Sheahan. Lena Greaney (Nee O'Loughlin) |
| Mon 4th            | 10 am |  |
| Tue 5th            | 10 am | No Mass  |
| Fri 8th            | 10 am | No Mass  |
| Sat 9th            | 7 pm  |  |
| Knockea            |       |  |
| Sun 3rd            | 11am  | John Browne  |
| Wed 6th            | 10am  | Joe & Patricia Noonan (1st Anniv.) Tom O'Donnell           |
| Fri 8th            | 7pm   |  |
| Sun 10th           | 11am  | Patrick Shanahan. John Ryan (Oaklands) Ballysheedy         |
| Roxboro            |       |  |
|                    |       |  |
|                    |       |  |
|                    |       |  |

things with people who are terminally ill, we can contribute to fostering their sense of being "normal", which can often be undermined by the "routine of illness". The experience of presence, companionship and even the acceptance of limitation and dependency, when we take time to appreciate them, can greatly enrich the later stages of life. The attitude of Jesus towards the sick and towards those who are in any way marginalised, has much to teach us about the value of time spent caring for one another. Many of us, at times, are called to be carers in our own circle of family and friends. Others may find it possible to care for the carers. The bonds of friendship and solidarity that are developed and strengthened in caring relationships, extend beyond the carer and the one who

Parish of Donoughmore/

Knockea/Roxboro

Fr Tom Mangan PP
087-2348226

Fr Dave Kennedy, weekend assistant
dkrparish@gmail.com
Website, dkrparish.ie

Facebook: DKR Parish Limerick

Sacristan

Terry 087-6686050
The Eircode for St. Patrick's Church, Donoughmore is V94 V6T3.
Knockea is V94 D938.

is cared for to the whole of society. Ceremonies of First Holy Communion and Confirmation have been celebrated Thanks to everyone for their support and co-operation. The Irish Catholic Paper will be on sale in our Churches from this weekend we have got a few copies to start with, if we need more we can order extra, cost per copy is €2.50

Recent death Our sympathy to the Kirby Family on the passing of their dear mother Alice , funeral took place in Knockea Friday at 1pm May she rest in peace
Weekly Parish Lotto: No Winner €5,600 winning numbers 10,12,21,26. no. winners lucky dips-1. John Ryan. 2.Margaret Dooley. 3.Rose Moloney 4.Josephine, Mary c/o Josephine Hayes Next week's jackpot €5,700 next draw Tuesday 5th Oct. at the Cats Cradle 9.30pm. Thank you

